

Assistant Professor, Tenure-track, in the Archaeology of the Classical, Roman, or Late Antique Hellenic Worlds at the Hellenic Studies Program at Simon Fraser University

The Hellenic Studies Program is seeking to hire an assistant professor, tenure track with expertise in the archaeology of the Classical, Roman, Hellenistic, or Late Antique Hellenic world, broadly defined. Duties will include research and teaching courses on archaeology as well as on ancient history in the Classical, Hellenistic, and Roman worlds.

The successful candidate will coordinate with existing faculty to develop courses that effectively integrate their field of expertise into the curriculum and research profile of the Hellenic Studies Program. Functioning knowledge of Modern Greek, while not essential for the position will be favorably assessed. The Hellenic Studies Program is seeking to hire a candidate who will actively engage in and enrich the outreach activities of the program while contributing to its academic profile. The successful candidate will be invited to join the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Centre for Hellenic Studies.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and Permanent Residents of Canada will be given priority. Simon Fraser University, located in the greater Vancouver area, is committed to an equity employment program that includes special measures to achieve diversity among its faculty and staff. We particularly encourage applications from qualified women, aboriginal Canadians, persons with disabilities, and members of visible minorities.

Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and research statement. They should also include in their application package a one-page statement of teaching philosophy and syllabi from courses prepared and/or taught. Candidates should also have three letters of recommendation sent to us.
